Frasers Property Australia secures over AUD$275 million worth of new development projects

Sydney – 17 September 2015 – In the past 12 months, Frasers Property Australia (formerly known as Australand) has secured over AUD$275 million worth of new development projects across its national industrial and commercial platform, comprising 210,900 sq m. The total commercial + industrial portfolio is currently valued at approximately AUD$2.4 billion.

The majority of the transactions were secured in Sydney and Melbourne with the remainder in Adelaide and Brisbane.

Reini Otter, Executive General Manager Commercial and Industrial for Frasers Property Australia (Frasers Property) comments, “The past year has been a phenomenal success for the industrial and commercial business. Frasers Property’s ongoing release of land banks and integrated development model which offers a variety of property solutions has helped the business achieve these solid results.

“The strong performance of the housing markets in both Sydney and Melbourne over the past 12 months has helped increase demand in these cities for consumer goods, well-located distribution centres and storage space. Customers working in this space are increasingly seeking facilities in shorter time frames which we have been able to deliver.”

Major pre-lease deals that have been secured within the last 12 months include Toshiba, Fisher and Paykel, Australian Geographic and Miele.

Reini continued, “Several trends that have been witnessed in the past year including a strong compression in yield which has led to an increase in asset prices, particularly in the core logistics markets of Western Sydney, Melbourne’s West and South East markets as well as Brisbane’s Trade Coast and the Logan Motorway corridor outside Brisbane.

“The scarcity of quality assets available on the market combined with the continued aggressive acquisitions by offshore funds has seen some owners sell and capitalise on the high prices overseas buyers are willing to pay for quality locations.”

He added, “There has also been a shift towards consolidation for some major groups as they seek to improve their efficiencies and service offering to customers. Ceva in Melbourne’s West Park who committed to a new 75,000 sq m campus development is a perfect example. Finally we expect to see an emergence of more overseas retailers such as H & M expanding in Australia.”

Within the next 12 months the commercial and industrial business has a strong development pipeline of 280,000 sq m to deliver assets valued at over AUD$400 million. Frasers Property is also looking to restock in its three main markets – Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane.

Reini concluded, “Frasers Property is currently working on several exciting environmental initiatives, one of which includes designing Australia’s first 6 star green star estate at The Horsley Drive Business Park in Western Sydney. This project is expected to set an industry benchmark for how industrial estates are developed from both an owner and an occupier’s perspective in terms of minimising total occupancy and running costs.”
