PRESS RELEASE

INDUSTRIAL

“The Ayutthaya region, being a strategic hub for the country’s industrial and logistics sector, is home for us. We recognize the overwhelming need for hospital beds with the COVID-19 pandemic and are glad to be able to do our part for the local community. By combining our efforts with the team at Rojana Industrial Park and local authorities, we were able to transform our existing factory space into a fully-equipped 430-bed medical facility.”

Mr. Chai Vinichbutr, Executive Director of Rojana Industrial Park Public Co, Ltd., said, “We are responding to the needs of the community by partnering with the government and like-minded partners, such as FPIT, to ease the demand for medical facilities and hospital beds. This is a testament to the great collaboration between the public and private sectors. All our directors and employees are committed to helping the community and industrial sector tide over this challenging period.”

The field hospital officially started warding COVID-19 patients on 31 August 2021. The Ministry of Public Health and Uthai Hospital are responsible for setting the acceptance criteria for patients.

Infrastructure, utilities, food and other necessities for this temporary medical facility is well supported by related government authorities and the private sector. For instance, the Provincial Electricity Authority (PEA) provides electrical transformers and electrical control cabinets, while the CAT Telecom Public Company Limited has enabled specialized communication systems for the project. The Thai Beverage Public Company Limited has also pledged to donate drinking water.

Just last month, Frasers Property Industrial handed over a 309-bed isolation centre, its first medical conversion of industrial space, to the community in Rayong. The business intends to further extend its expertise and partner like-minded organisations that can contribute to Thailand’s local COVID-19 relief efforts.
